My mom discovers voice notes

PREMISE

Parents finally learned technology, and it was a mistake — for us.

SETUP

My mom discovered voice notes. Every single one starts with "I won't keep you long." Then it's four minutes. Four minutes! That's not a message, that's a podcast. She has an intro. She has a segment. At one point I heard her open the fridge.

PUNCHLINE

And the last ten seconds are always: "Okay, call me." Mom. I just listened to a TED talk about your knee. What's left?

TAGS & ACT-OUTS

+1 Act-out: her holding the phone like a walkie-talkie, shouting "OVER."

+2 I sped it up to 2x. Now she sounds like she's being chased — still a better story.

PRIVATE NOTES

Pause after "four minutes" — the second one gets the laugh. Try opening with the fridge?
